

Interested in Interning?

If you enjoyed taking the lab and did well in both Biology 101 lecture and lab (A or B), you are eligible to be an intern! We try to recruit enough interns so that each lab has one extra set of hands. Interns help in lab once a week and earn one credit for taking Biology 291. The TA teaching the lab section will be supervising you in lab. Interns are required to attend lab every week including the days of exams.

Interns primarily help students in lab with equipment, getting supplies, answering questions and proctoring the midterm and final. Interns may not grade any assignments, hold review sessions with students, or provide any help on written assignments as this could lead to a possible Honor Code violation.

If you are interested in interning for the next semester, be sure to talk to your TA about it, complete the Biology 291 application and contract, maintain a GPA of 3.0 or higher and provide your grade for lecture and lab on the application (unless you are still taking the lecture and lab).

After you complete the application and contract, you will receive an email with a Doodle Poll asking for your availability. We work with your schedule to assign you to a lab section. Interns help the labs go so much smoother, TAs appreciate the help and past interns have found the experience to be enjoyable and valuable. Another plus: if you intern twice you might be eligible to teach your own lab section!
